

Describe an old person who is interesting

You should say:

- Who this person is
- How you know him/her
- What you do with this person
- And explain why you think this person is interesting

I've decided to talk about a friend of the family – I call her Auntie Jo, but she's not my real aunt – she's an honorary aunt. I can't recall when I first met her – as far as I am aware, she has always been around. I think she was close friends with my grandparents and she became part of the family. She is in her late seventies now, but she's not your typical OAP – she is a spring chicken. I think because she is young at heart, this keeps her young, both mentally and physically. When I was studying in primary school, my parents used to work long hours and so Auntie Jo would look after us until they got home.

The main reason why I find her fascinating is that she used to live in Italy when she was younger and she would tell me stories about her time there. She's a good raconteur and her tales were hilarious. She may have told a few white lies to make the stories more entertaining, but I didn't care – she's such a great storyteller.

Cue Card - People

Because she spent many years living in Italy, she prepares exciting and tasty dishes such as pizza and pasta. Most oldies in my country are not into Italian cuisine, but I love the fact that she has embraced another culture and, to this day, she makes homemade pizza when I pop round to see her.

Unlike many senior citizens who are stuck in their ways and do not like change, she embraces change and is always keen to try something new. She has an Instagram account and regularly posts selfies. She is computer literate and knows more about computers than many people half her age. She is inspirational because, despite her age, she doesn't slow down, she just enjoys life. They say you can't teach an old dog new tricks, well that is nonsense because my Auntie Jo never stops learning and I think that is what keeps her young.

PART 3

What can old people teach young people?

Nowadays, many young people consume too much fast food and rely on convenience food.

Therefore, the thing we can learn most from the older generation is cooking from scratch. This is a vital life skill that is sadly lacking in many teens.

Not only is cooking cheaper than buying ready meals, it is more nutritious, wholesome and tastier.

PART 3

Do you think old people should live with their family?

My initial reaction was yes because they looked after us when we were young and we should return the favour.

However, I think that answer is too simplistic.

There are many children who do not have a good relationship with their parents for a variety of reasons, which I won't go into, and sometimes it is impossible for them to live under the same roof. On the whole, it is a good idea, but it is not always doable.

Describe an intelligent person you know

You should say:

Who this person is
How you know this person
What this person does
And explain why you think this person is intelligent

Gosh, this is quite a tricky topic because I know a lot of people who are intelligent, but it is a struggle to say why I think they are an intellectual. I've decided to talk about a close friend of mine, who I would classify as very smart for a number of reasons.

Firstly, he is academically intelligent. He has a masters degree in something or other, sorry it has completely slipped my mind what it is... but I guess to be able to study to a high level such as this means that he is bright. On top of that, he has a top job in a university – not teaching, but something in HR. However, I would like to focus on other areas which I think make him stand out as being clever.

Cue Card - People

The area I'd like to focus on is common sense. What do I mean by that? Well, it means a natural ability to make good judgements and behave in a practical and sensible way. Sadly, this is a skill that is lacking in many people today. To give you an example, one of the things he does, which I think exemplifies his common sense is realising that you cannot achieve anything without dedication. You cannot change your life without putting in the time, without putting in the effort and without putting up with the setbacks required to master whatever it is you have chosen to do.

For example, when he wanted to learn Spanish then he started speaking Spanish. When he wanted to lose weight, he lowered his calorie intake and exercised regularly. He realizes that with everything in life there are no shortcuts. As a result, he keeps progressing and developing and doesn't sit still. I think this is the greatest sign of intellect rather than the number of qualifications he has.

PART 3

Do you think smart people tend to be selfish?

No, I don't think there is a correlation between the two things at all.

There is no proof of a connection between being intelligent and being self-centered.

All kinds of people can be egotistical and, similarly, all kinds can be selfless as well.

PART 3

Who do you think plays a more important role in a child's development, teachers or parents?

For me, I don't think one overrides* the other because both are vitally important.

I've known kids who have supportive parents who have turned out horrible and, likewise, those who have unsupportive ones, who have been successful.

Ideally, having caring parents and inspirational teachers would be the best – that would be a win-win situation.

If something overrides* something else it means to take control of something

Why are some children more intelligent than others?

In my personal experience, I think it is largely due to how much time their parents have spent with them. For example, youngsters who have parents who read to them every night and give them life experiences such as going on walks, going to museums or teaching them how to cook, tend to be more intelligent and more capable than those who don't interact with their kids.

Describe an interesting person from another country you know or have heard of

You should say:

- who this person is
- how you got to know this person
- what kind of person he/she is
- and explain why you think he/she is interesting

I'm going to talk about my friend, Yuki. I can't remember rightly when we first met... I'm guessing it was roughly five years ago. She comes from Japan, but I'm not entirely sure where she comes from exactly, she will have told me, but it's slipped my mind.

Despite the fact that she's a different nationality, we hit it off straight away because she has a wicked sense of humour. I used to work with her friend and we were both invited to a party and met there. Then we bumped into each other on a few other occasions, and started messaging each other. It's hard to say when we actually became friends, it just sort of evolved.

We've got loads in common too. She's really into football and is a massive fan of Manchester United. We often hang out and watch games and have a good catch up. We became friends through a mutual friend.

Cue Card - People

I was planning to learn Japanese before I met Yuki and she has taught me a few words, but she is fluent in English so we tend to just communicate in English. One of these days, I will get round to learning Japanese, but I need to master English first.

Although we are close friends, we don't get much chance to meet up because our lives are just so hectic. When we do get together though, it's like we've never been apart. Next summer, we're hoping to go away for a few days, a kind of mini break. We haven't decided where we're going, but we're both food lovers so wherever we go, there'll undoubtedly be lots of eating involved. It'll be great to spend some time together catching up on all the gossip and chilling out as well.

Describe a person who wears unusual clothes

You should say:

- Who it is
- How you know him/her
- What kind of clothes he/she wears
- And explain why you think his/her clothes are unusual

Cue Card - People

It didn't take me long to come up with* a person to talk about for this topic because my closest friend, Anna, fits this description. She is the queen of weird and wacky* clothes so I'm delighted to be able to talk about her.

*to come up with = to think of

to fit this description = to have these qualities

the queen = a queen is someone who doesn't conform to what others think of her; the best

*weird and wacky = strange and unusual

Like I said, she's my BFF* and I've known her for ages. I can't remember the exact date when we met but it was when we were studying in high school. At that time, we had to wear a school uniform, but as soon as we got home she would change into something loud and daring, to say the least. Since leaving school, she has become even more eccentric* in her clothing choices. She is an artist so she doesn't need to wear smart or conservative clothes for work. I could never wear what she wears in a million years, but she looks incredibly stylish and unique.

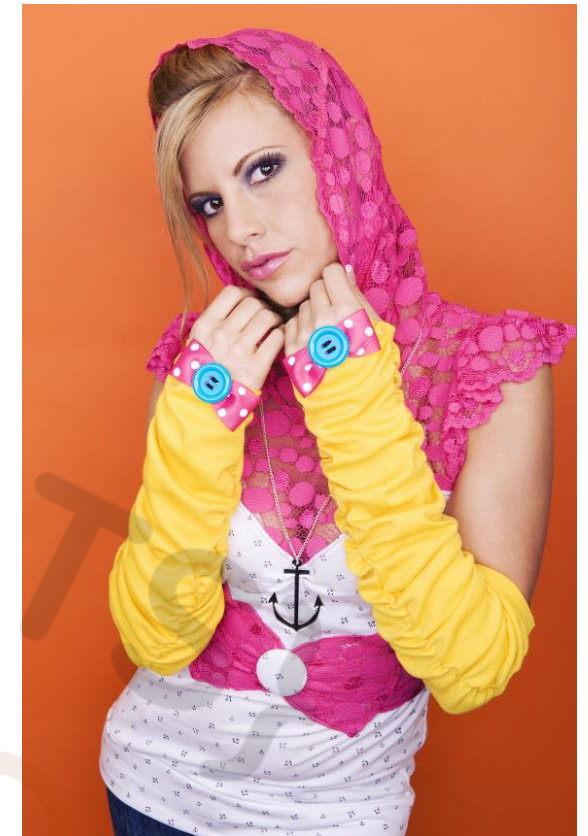

*BFF = best friend forever

daring = brave; bold

to say the least = you use this when you could have used a stronger expression

*eccentric = unusual; weird

conservative = traditional

Cue Card - People

It's not so much what she wears, it's more of the colour combinations*. I tend to dress in black most of the time because I don't like to stand out, but she wears bright quite garish colours and she somehow pulls it off*. She has a larger-than-life personality so I guess that's why it works. I don't think it would work if she were a shy, introverted wallflower**.

*combinations = groupings

to stand out = to attract attention

garish = bright; loud

*to pull something off = to succeed

a larger-than-life personality = strong/lively

introverted = shy

a wallflower = a shy person

To be perfectly honest, I'm quite envious* because she couldn't care less what people think of her and she wears clothes that make her happy. I am too self-conscious to wear such clothes. She once wore a dazzling* yellow mini dress with red wellies and a straw hat. She looked stunning. Her clothes might be a bit out-there, but she still is the best-dressed person I know.

*envious = jealous

she couldn't care less = she's not worried

self-conscious = nervous and embarrassed

*dazzling = bright; amazing to be out-there = unusual; eccentric

Part 2 - Describe a famous athlete you have heard of

You should say:

- Who he or she is
- How you heard of him/her
- What he or she has achieved
- And explain why you think he or she is famous

I'm delighted I've got this topic because I'm a massive fan of sport. In particular, I'm obsessed with football. That's English football, not American football. The player I'm going to talk about is a centre forward called Harry Kane.

Since I'm really into football, that's how I heard of this player. Moreover, I'm a supporter of Tottenham and he plays for them so I watch him week in week out and he's probably one of my favourite players at this moment in time. He has been playing for Tottenham for, oh let me think... about 9 or 10 years, but for some of that time he was on loan to other clubs.

In terms of achievements, well there are quite a few. Despite the fact that he has not won any trophies with his club or when he is playing for his national team, England, he was awarded the title of Player of the Year in England last season and has won the Golden Boot for the last two seasons.

Cue Card - People

Furthermore, for the calendar year of 2017 he scored the most goals in a season. He scored a total of 56 goals for club and country. Amazingly, he scored more goals than two of the world's greatest footballers – Ronaldo and Messi.

Although he is still relatively young, he has become a respected player in the UK and globally. I guess and I hope that in the very near future he becomes the greatest player in the world. I have no doubt that he can do this because he is an extremely determined person and works hard to be successful. He is a world-class player and can go from strength to strength. Probably the thing I love most about him is he is remarkably down-to-earth. He has the world at his feet and yet he still seems like the boy next door.

Describe a person who often helps others

You should say:

- Who the person is
- What the person does
- Why this person helps others
- And explain how you feel about this person

I was struggling to decide who to talk about because, to be perfectly honest, I couldn't think of anyone. Don't get me wrong, I do have helpful friends, but I'd struggle to talk about them for two minutes so the first person that I thought of outside of my friends and family was Bill Gates and his wife. Her name has slipped my mind so apologies for referring to her as 'his wife'.

As you are probably aware, Bill Gates is the founder of Microsoft. He established this company in the 1970s and it went on to become one of the most successful and profitable corporations in the world. As far as I know, he retired or semi-retired from the company a decade or so ago and he set up a charitable foundation with his wife.

I think I am right in saying that it is the world's largest private charity. Obviously, as the world's richest person, no, in actual fact, I think he is the second world's richest person now, some may argue he should do this, but I disagree, if he wanted to enjoy his retirement chilling out in the sun all day, that's fine by me.

Cue Card - People

Don't quote me on this, but I believe that through his charity he has given away just under 50% of his wealth. Personally, I think that's incredible. I know he has an astronomical amount of money, but still, it's pretty amazing. He worked hard for his money, he wasn't born with a silver spoon in his mouth* and through his hard work, he is helping others.

Again, I'm not entirely sure, but I have a feeling that the main work of the foundation is people's health. Going from being one of the world's greatest entrepreneurs to the world's greatest philanthropist* makes Bill Gates someone who must be admired.

* a person who is born into a wealthy family of high social standing

 a person who seeks to improve the welfare of others, especially by the generous donation of money to good causes

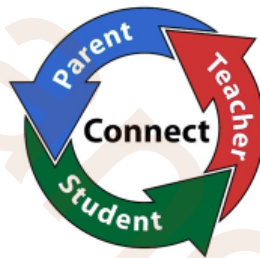

PART 3

Who should teach children to help others – parents or teachers?

Well both of them, obviously, but I guess that parents have a far greater role to play in this.

Parents are with their offspring for many years before they start school and the sooner that helpful behaviour is encouraged the better

When children start school teachers should be positive role models and reward pupils when they see them doing good deeds.

*an action that is performed intentionally or consciously

Describe a person you would like to meet

You should say:

- Who it is
- What he/she has done
- Why you want to meet him/her
- And explain how you would feel if you met him/her

This is a tricky question for me to answer because there are literally hundreds of people that I'd love to meet, but if I had to choose just one, then it would be Kim Namjoon. He is relatively unknown in my country; however, he is an internationally known singer-songwriter and music producer who comes from Korea. BTS, the group that he is in, was named in the 20 most influential people to watch in 2019 alongside Michelle Obama, Bill Gates and Elon Musk among others so he is a person of note.

Many people might mock me and say 'oh he's only a pop star', but he is more than just a pop star. Last year, BTS were invited to speak at the United Nations and Namjoon gave a seven minute speech on the importance of 'loving yourself'. Mental health problems are at a record high in my country so for an idol to speak about self-love this will hopefully lead to young people taking more care of their mental health. At the moment, there are very few intelligent and worthy celebrities to admire, as many of them are youtubers or reality stars such as Kim Kardashian so it is refreshing to find a superstar who is not shallow like these others.

Cue Card - People

How would I feel if I met him? Well, I can say for sure that I would be overwhelmed. I once met a D-list celebrity when I was visiting London and I cried when he stopped to let me take his photo so you can imagine that if I met Kim Namjoon, someone who I respect, admire and hero worship, I would probably be in floods of tears.

I hope though, that I would be able to have a conversation with him. Despite being Korean, he is fluent in English and I would love to have a chat with him about all kinds of things. Unlike many famous people, who seem self-obsessed and narcissistic, I imagine that Kim Namjoon would not be like this, as he doesn't come across like this in interviews. He seems very humble and down-to-earth. Sadly, I cannot imagine ever getting to meet him, not in a million years, but here's hoping.

Describe a family member you spend most time with

You should say:

- Who it is
- What he/she is like
- What you usually do together
- And explain why you spend time with him/her

It was quite tricky to decide who to talk about because I come from quite a close-knit family and I spend a lot of time with many members of the family because we have a lot of family get-togethers, but I've decided to talk about my cousin because recently we've been hanging out with* each other a lot.

*to hang out with = to spend a lot of time with someone

Like I said, he's my cousin, my maternal cousin to be more precise. Although we're not exactly the same age, we're both in our mid twenties and our friendship circle is the same so whenever I go out with my mates, he's there too. When we were growing up, we weren't as close because he lived overseas, but since returning to the UK, we've been spending loads of time together. Because of this, we've grown much closer and get on really well with each other.

to grow closer = to become/get closer

Cue Card - People

As for what he's like, well he's much more outgoing than me. He could be described as a social butterfly*, I guess living abroad for a long period made him more confident because he had to make new friends. When we go out, he's the life and soul of the party whereas I am a bit more introverted.

*a social butterfly = a person who is sociable and friendly with everyone

introverted = a person who is shy and quiet and prefers spending time alone

Despite being opposites in terms of our personality, I enjoy being with him. It could be because opposites attract, but I think it's because when I'm with him I come out of my shell*. If it wasn't for him, I'd be at home every night being a hermit and that wouldn't be much fun.

opposites attract = used to say that people who are very different from each other are often attracted to each other *to come out of my/your/their/his/her shell = to become more open and friendly

a hermit = a loner; a person who lives alone and apart from the rest of society

Describe your favourite singer or band

you should say

- Who they are
- What their personality is like
- What style of music they have
- And explain why they are your favourite singer or band

I'm really pleased you've given me this topic because I'm a massive music fan, but there is one group who is head and shoulders above the rest, in my opinion, and that is BTS. They are a Korean group who have been around for around six years now, but I only got into them last year.

I first heard about them when they won an award at the Billboard Music Awards and I decided to take a look at their latest video. I was instantly mesmerised because not only can they sing, but they are incredible dancers. After watching the video, I was keen to find out more about them and I binge watched hours of videos and discovered they are seven of the funniest, wittiest and most charming human beings on the planet. Trying to put them into a musical genre is tricky because although they are classed as K-Pop, their music consists of rap, R&B, hip hop, pop rock and EDM (electronic dance music). Unlike many so-called boy bands, they write and produce a lot of their music so they are not a typical manufactured boy band.

Cue Card - People

There are seven members – RM is the main rapper and the leader.

There are three rappers in total and four vocalists. All seven of them dance; mind you, some are better than others, namely J-Hope, Jimin and Jungkook. Suga is also one of the main producers along with RM and J-Hope. And then there's V, who as well as being the most handsome man on the planet, has the most amazing soulful voice.

Why are they my favourite band? Well, where do I start? Musically, they are producing some of the best songs in the world at the moment. Their lyrics tackle issues such as mental health, the education system, the pressures of fame, materialism... among many other things. They are not a typical boy band singing pretty love songs – they are not afraid to use their voice to talk about controversial topics.

Despite singing almost entirely in Korean, their music is emotional and although I cannot understand every word, it doesn't matter. I understand the sentiment of the song and that is much more important than understanding every lyric.

PART 3

What kind of music do people like at different ages?

Well, most kids like catchy songs and these tend to be pop songs.

As people get older, tastes change but I don't think there is a specific genre for a specific age.

There are teens who are into classical music and there are adults who are into EDM so it is wrong to stereotype age and musical taste.

PART 3

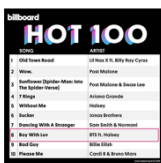

What kind of music is popular in your country now and what do you think will be popular in the future?

To be perfectly honest, I don't follow the charts so I'm not entirely sure what is popular.

Generally, British and American groups and singers tend to be the most successful such as Ariana Grande.

In the future, I think, or rather I hope, that we will see more non-English speaking artists becoming popular, as music transcends* language and I hate the fact that the music scene is predominantly English-speaking in my country.

*to rise above or go beyond the normal limits of (something)

Describe a person you have seen who is beautiful or handsome

You should say:

- Who he/she is
- When and where you saw/met this person
- What he/she does
- And explain why you think this person is beautiful/handsome

I've decided to talk about a person who is regarded as one of the most handsome men in the world and that is David Beckham. Despite being in his forties now, he has aged very well and is still viewed as one of the most beautiful men in the world. David Beckham is a retired footballer who used to play for Manchester United, Real Madrid and AC Milan to name but a few. He has stopped playing now, but has retained his sporty physique and looks very fit for a man of his age.

I can't recall precisely when I saw him for the first time, but it was when he was playing for Manchester United. At that time, he had many different hairstyles; however, whatever he does to his hair, he still looks amazing. He is married to Victoria Beckham, who is a successful fashion designer, so she has probably had a strong influence on his style. He is well known throughout the world as being a fashion and style icon. In fact, I believe he is the person who got men more interested in fashion and beauty through his clothing line for H&M and beauty products.

Cue Card - People

They say that beauty is only skin deep and this is true; yet David Beckham is someone who is beautiful inside and out. He does a significant amount of charity work for organisations such as UNICEF and I feel that this contributes to making him more attractive. I have also heard that everyone who meets him says that he is charming, charismatic and warm-hearted so these are all factors that make him a beautiful person.

Although he is middle-aged now and has a few wrinkles on his face, he has the brightest and biggest smile and he is still a very striking man. Many lose their looks as they get older, but Beckham is maturing very well and even though he has lost his youthful good looks, he is still one of the most attractive men in the world.

Describe a person who speaks a foreign language well

You should say:

- Who this person is
- What language they know
- What he/she uses this language for
- And explain why you think he/she learned it well

Ok, so the person I'm going to talk about is called Amy. She is one of my closest friends and we've known each other since primary school. We met in Year 1 but we didn't actually become best friends until Year 3. Anyway, when we were studying in high school, she wasn't into languages at all and hated studying French so I always felt she wasn't a natural linguist. I was the opposite, I found French relatively easy and was able to pick it up quite quickly.

About two years ago, Amy started to get into K-Pop and although she couldn't understand a word, she loved the music. Through listening to Korean music, she then discovered K-Dramas and she quickly became addicted to them. These two things sparked an interest in the Korean language and she was inspired to try to learn Korean. She picked up the odd word just through watching, but she knew she needed to put some effort into learning it properly.

Cue Card - People

It is an exceedingly difficult language because you need to learn a new alphabet and I expected her to give up, but she mastered it really quickly. She watched loads of YouTube videos and bought a text book to help her with the basics. Every spare minute, she had her head in that book. I'll be honest, I thought it was a fad and she would quickly get bored and quit, but she stuck at it, which really impressed me.

Now, two years later, she is fluent in Korean – when I say fluent, obviously she doesn't know every single word, but she can communicate with Koreans. She still uses subtitles when watching K-Dramas because it helps her to expand her vocabulary but she can understand the gist without reading them. I have nothing but admiration for her – it is a totally different language to her native language and she has picked it up in a comparatively short time and has proved herself to be a natural linguist.

PART 3

Do you think English will be the most commonly used language in the world?

Quite possibly... at the moment the most commonly spoken language is Mandarin with over a billion speakers, but...

I'm guessing that English is not that far behind. If you consider the figures for native and non-native speakers using English then I imagine it is already the most spoken language.

I hope we don't see a time when English replaces all languages because having different languages makes the world a much more colourful and diverse place.

Describe a person who has interesting ideas or opinions

You should say:

- Who the person is
- What the person does
- How you know him/her
- And explain why you think his/her ideas/opinions are interesting

I was struggling to decide who to talk about because, to be perfectly honest, I couldn't think of anyone who I'd be able to talk about for two minutes. Don't get me wrong, I do have interesting friends, but I wouldn't say they have particularly interesting ideas so the first person that I thought of outside of my friends and family was Walt Disney. I have to say that I'm not a massive Disney fan so I don't have loads of facts and figures about him, but I am an admirer of his work.

Sadly, he is no longer with us... I'm not entirely sure when he passed away, but I'm guessing it was in the sixties. Anyway, he was an American entrepreneur and the pioneer of the animation industry. Like I said, I don't know the exact timeline of when he did things but he is renowned for being the creator of characters such as Micky Mouse and Donald Duck. He was the producer of many Disney films and these films are still hugely popular today so that shows that his ideas had longevity and are still liked by people in the 21st century.

Cue Card - People

As well as being a film producer, he created Disneyland. This is a theme park in LA and it later expanded to Disneyworld in Florida and Paris. He produced a magical world and his attention to detail was second-to-none. He was an innovator and inspired many, but I think what is absolutely incredible is that even 60 years after his death, his creations have not gone out-of-date.

It really is unbelievable that over half a century after his death, Walt Disney World is still the most-visited vacation destination resort anywhere in the world. His imagination knew no bounds* and without him, I don't think we would have films like Toy Story or Frozen. He was a visionary and a trendsetter.

*If you say that a feeling or quality knows no bounds, you are emphasizing that it is very strong or intense.

The passion of Argentinian football fans knows no bounds.

PART 3

When do children begin to have their own ideas?

Oh, I'm not entirely sure, because I'm not a child psychologist, but...

Off the top of my head, I think it's when they are still pretty young.

Two year olds are renowned for having tantrums* and they are called the 'terrible twos'. I think this is because they get annoyed when they don't get their own way.

*an uncontrolled outburst of anger and frustration, typically in a young child.

get or do what you want

Describe your best friend from your childhood You should say:

- Who it was
- When you met
- What you did with him/her
- And explain why you liked him/her

To be honest, when I was a child, I didn't have one particular best friend, I had quite a wide circle of friends – I was far more popular in my youth than now; however, I will talk about one in particular and her name is Anna.

If I remember rightly, we met in nursery. I would have been around 4 or 5 I guess. I can't remember our first encounter specifically, I just remember always being friends with her. Not only did we spend all day together at school, but also we moved house when I was five and actually moved to the same street as her so when we were a bit older, we used to walk to school together and then hang out after school. I can't remember exactly what we would do, watching TV and chilling out mostly.

Cue Card - People

Although I can't recall our first meeting, I suppose we must have hit it off straightaway, as we remain friends to this day. We have a lot in common such as common interests in sport and, furthermore, we have a great rapport. I can't remember us ever having a crossed word.

I wouldn't call her my bestie, as I don't think I have ever had a best friend, as like I said, I have a friendship group, but she is probably the one who knows me the best. I confide in her a lot because she can keep a secret and is never judgemental. As we have been friends for several decades now, I'm certain that she is a friend for life. Even though we don't live in each other's pockets, I know she is there for me whenever I need her and vice versa.

Cue Card - People

Describe an energetic person

To be perfectly honest, I could have picked/chosen any of my friends/mates because they're all pretty active but the one I've gone for is Ana, who is like a whirlwind* compared to me.

*a whirlwind = an energetic person

I've known her for roughly ten years. We met when we were studying at uni. We were both doing the same degree and have remained friends since then. At that time, she used to get up at 6am and go for a run before coming to lectures and would be in the gym and/or pool every night. She has been doing triathlons since she was a teen so she needs to work on her swimming, running and cycling. I once went for a run with her and I couldn't keep up – her level of fitness is extraordinary.

to keep up = to go at the same speed

Cue Card - People

As well as being a fitness freak, she has a high-powered job in finance. I don't know how she does it. She once said that she still does the triathlons because they help her to switch off from work. Without it, she said she would go insane. It helps to recharge her batteries after a stressful day at work. I'm the complete opposite. I get home from work and collapse on the sofa and binge watch* Netflix.

*to binge watch = to watch one show after another

As for how I feel about her, I have the utmost admiration for her. I wish I had half the energy she has. She is always full of beans. She is incredibly dedicated, passionate and inspirational. I wish some of it would rub off on me!

to have the utmost admiration for = to have the greatest respect for

to rub off on = to be transferred to
